To whom it may concern,

I have taken classes with Tyler Nolan for my whole high school career. These classes were mainly harder classes such as Dual credit and AP classes and I have witnessed his work ethic and behavior towards others firsthand as a fellow student of his. His work ethic as a student is amazing and his intelligence is clearly seen in class as he's always participating in class discussions and helping others around him solve difficult problems. He has even personally helped me in classes such as in Pre-Calculus BC where I had many struggles throughout the course of the year. He helped me through a lot of difficult problems and was definitely a top-tier student in the class.

Outside of school, Tyler is involved in plenty of extra-curricular activities. He has been on the varsity cross-country for all four years of high school and I have seen him running around the town with his team on various occasions so I know that he is committed and as a junior and senior he has been a leader for the team. He is also a member of National Honors Society which speaks for itself in many ways. It means that Tyler is committed to preparing for his future, to serving his community, and being a good, intellectual student at BHS. Tyler has a very promising future and I wish the best for the future of his career and life wherever it may take him.

Sincerely,

Trey Gammon
